Message from the Superintendent

Dear Rosemead Community and Friends,

Schools Back in Session:

By the time you read this district update, school will have been in session for almost a month. In that time we held summer registrations, school orientations, and welcomed back almost 2,400 students to our four elementary schools and one middle school. We also held all of our Back to School events which were a huge success. These evening events presented our parents a unique and personalized opportunity to get to know their children's teachers, learn about the instructional program of the school, and learn about strategies to support students at home. We had a huge turnout at all of our schools which speaks to the commitment of our parents to our schools and students.

As it relates to the ways to best support students, the beginning of the school year is a great opportunity to reintroduce and reinforce good study habits. When internalized, these habits become the foundation for creating independent life-long learners. Below are some habits for parents and students that may be useful:

- Communication - Parents should establish good early communication with teachers. Parents should be aware of classroom expectations, homework policies, and grading. Parents should have daily conversations with their children about their school day. Starting with broad questions such as, "How was your day at school?" helps to get the conversation going. Do not be shy about asking about homework, tests, grades, or behavior.
- Organization - Students should use a planner to write down daily, weekly, and long term assignments. Parents should know to review planners with students on a daily basis. Planners are also a good way to communicate with teachers as they often review planners with students.
- Designate a study area and time - Routines are important for everyone. Students, especially, need the structure of having a designated time and place at home to complete homework, study, and read for enjoyment. This area should be free from distractions such as video games and televisions. Any use of technology, such as computers, should support homework and studying.
- Patience and Perseverance - Our new state standards require our students to think critically, problem solve, and be creative. Struggling a bit to understand concepts or make connections from classwork to homework should be expected. If your children get overly frustrated with homework, then please communicate immediately with teachers. Homework is designed to reinforce classroom instruction and stretch students' minds, not create frustration.
